On the fifth floor of Japan's capital's newest luxury hotel, the Palace Hotel Tokyo, the first ever evian branded spa in Japan occupies 1,200 square metres and offers guests an ambitious blend of Asian therapies with a touch of French je ne sais quoi. With five treatment rooms and one spa suite, the spa also offers men and women relaxation facilities including heated bath, cold plunge pool, marble saunas and heated baths. The spa focuses on body treatments based around detoxification and restoration and also offers marine mud therapies and scrubs made of black sand, mineral salt, sweet almond, pistachio or passion fruit. www.palacehoteltokyo.com
